What Norfolk Needs.

Editor Virginian-Pilot:
As the widening of Wolfe street and the building of a new city jail are now the subjects of discussion suggestions are in order.

That new and enlarged jail accommo-dations are necessary must be admitted without dissent, nor need we fear dis-counting the future in greatly enlarging its proportions.

Now, we also need and require addi-tional avenues for the ever increasing traffic of the eastern side of the town, coming down Church street, and farther increased by the free Holt Street bridge route. Main street crowded and trolley car occupation needs now relief, and will require more.

The larger proportion of the property between Williamson's lane, Cumberland and Avon streets is not very valuable and possibly obtainable for but a frac-tion. If any more, than the viewers' es-timate in the Wolfe street widening proposition.

I might, therefore, suggest: Cut a wide avenue from the southwest corner of Cumberland and Wolfe street, diagonally to intersect at northeast corner of Avon and Cove streets. By that you will obtain easy and direct access from Church street through Holt street ex-tended down to near and easy reach of Market Square and the transpor-tation lines on the western side of the town.

Utilize the ground otherwise obtain-ed for large, commodious prison pre-mises, open to air and ventilation on all sides.

You may possibly satisfy the East side people and farther please the West side by an effort to regenerate a slum in the very heart of the town.

Reopen Talbot street, which properly and by right ought to go through to Cove street; cut off the objectionable corners of the City Hall grounds, which are useless angles, and give square open entry into City Hall avenue.
